

Commander

Chicory

Chicory is a very special plant and best described as an herb. Its taproot makes it drought resistant. It is best used as a component in grazing pastures, increasing overall palatability and animal intake. Many positive things have been reported on Chicory's effects on animal health. Chicory is high in energy and protein (30% and higher) and very palatable.

Forage Chicory

- High yielding
- Very palatable

Commander is a new winter active forage chicory, providing excellent year round growth. It has excellent disease resistance and a low crown giving good grazing tolerance, and erect leaves making grazing easier. Commander is high yielding and very palatable.
